

A detailed historical map of London, showing the River Thames flowing through the city. The map is rendered in a blue monochrome style. Overlaid on the map is the title 'No man is an island' in a large, elegant, white script font. The word 'No' is particularly large and stylized, with a long, sweeping tail that extends across the map. The words 'is' and 'an' are smaller and positioned below 'No'. The words 'man' and 'island' are also large and positioned to the right of 'is'. The map includes various labels for landmarks and districts, such as 'Prospect House', 'Bateman's', 'Finner of Wakefield', 'Islington', 'Reed Lyon', 'Haberghers Hospital', 'Dunhill Fields', 'Artillery Ground', 'Moor', 'Southwark', and 'Marston Wall'. The River Thames is labeled 'D E R T H E M S' in large, spaced-out letters along its course.
